About the Liaison Advisory Committee on Transfer Students (LACTS)

Iowa can be proud of its long-standing history of voluntary articulation efforts between public institutions of higher education. Soon after the creation of the Iowa's community colleges in 1966, discussions of transfer issues began with the public universities. One of the most successful committees to come out of these early meetings was the Liaison Advisory Committee on Transfer Students (LACTS). First organized in 1972 and confirmed as an ongoing advisory committee in 1973, LACTS continues to have an active role in facilitating transfer.

The LACTS committee exists to help make the student transition among Iowa public institutions of higher education as smooth and seamless as possible. LACTS welcomes and encourages individuals and/or institutions to bring articulation issues or concerns to their attention. They may do so by contacting any member of the committee. LACTS has six voting members, with three representatives from the community colleges, and a representative from each of the public universities and three ex-officio members. The community college representatives are appointed by and report to the Iowa Association of Community College Presidents. The regent representatives are appointed by and report to the Regents Committee on Educational Relations (RCER). While LACTS is an advisory group with no official policy-making authority, their recommendations are highly respected and often implemented.

LACTS was originally created in response to transcript and grading symbol issues, but soon became involved in all types of transfer topics. Over the years, the committee has been influential in the development of several areas of initial agreement between the community colleges and the public universities, including the following:

- Common grading symbols and definitions agreement.
- Career and technical credit agreement.
- International student academic and credential e evaluation agreement.
- College Level Examination Program (CLEP) agreement.
- Electronics/electronics-based technology agreement.
- Military credit agreement.
- Associate of Arts agreement.
- Associate of Sciences agreement.

Six (6) of the eight agreements have undergone one or more revisions since they were implemented (e.g., CLEP agreement was expanded to include Advanced Placement Program [APP] and institutional examinations).

LACTS meets several times a year to discuss and respond to articulation issues. It also hosts an annual statewide articulation meeting each spring at which time all written statewide articulation agreements are reviewed and reaffirmed. Representatives of the Iowa community college arts and sciences administrators, career and technical education deans, and chief student services administrators, and the Iowa public university deans of liberal arts and directors of admissions participate. Staffs from the Department of Education and Board of Regents are also present. LACTS historical records are housed in the archives at Iowa State University.
